Funeral Processions.

RURIAL OF ONE OF THE VETERANS OF 1812. Westerday the Veterans of 1812 assembled in front of the dwelling house of the late Daniel Underhill, who died suddenly on Thursday, in order to attend his funeral. The procession was attended by a fine band, which played several slow marches. The coffin was wrapped in an American flag, and placed in a hearse drawn by four gray horses, with black plumes in their harness. There were a great many of the Veterans, and we never saw them looking so well. They were the usual badge of mourning and carried sidearms. The color was covered with crape, and carried by one of the Veterans, well-knewn as 'Old 76." The funeral moved down Broad-way to the ferry, and from thence to Greenwood Cemete-ry, where the brave old veteran was interred with due nothing the control of the control of the color of th

ANOTHER OF THE NEW YORK VOLUNTEERS GONE. It has been our sad task to record the deaths and attend the funerals of a great number of this gallant little band, who last our shores to fight the battles of their country in a foreign clime, strong in numbers and in bealth, but, elas, there has returned but few of them, and those in such a bad state of health, that one by one they are dropping off, until soon there will not remain one of them on the face of the earth.

Yesterday the remnant of the Volunteers assembled at Yesterday the remnant of the Volunteers assembled at the Mercer House, for the purpose of conducting the mostal remains of Carl Butterbrod, late First Sergeant of Company B, to their final resting place. At half past one o'clock the procession moved firm Mercer House, down Breadway, to the South ferry, in the following order:

Jefferson Riffes, as a guard of escort.
Bodworth's Band, playing the Dead March:
The hearse, drawn by four grey horses, on each side of which marched the Volunteers, as a guard of honor.
The flag, encased in mourning, was carried by Color Sergeants.
Officers of the Volunteers.
Carriages, containing the friends of the deceased.
In this manner the cortege proceeded to Greenwood Cametary, where a volley was fired over the remains of the "departed soldier."

Oblituary.

BRUAMIN BIRDSAIL, Esq., who died at his residence, in Madison, New Jersey, on the 30th ult, at the advanced age of seventy-eight years, was for a long time a prominent politician, and possessing great influence in the mominations, elections, and appointments to office in this city. He was one of the securities of Mr. Swartwout as Collector of the Customs, and in consequence of the programmate defalcation growing out of that affair, he unfortunate defalcation growing out of that affair, he was very heavily implicated, and his pecuniary prospects impaired. He was, at one time, an active member of the Jackson democratic party, but disapproving of the removal of the deposits from the United States Bank, he became connected with the opposition to the administra-tion, first, as one of the "rank and file" party, which secoded from Tammany Hall, and afterwards acting with a Lee, and other conservatives, in revolutionizing Gideon Lee, and other conservatives, in revolutionizing the State, and electing Aaron Clark as Mayor of the city, Seward as Governor of the State, and General Harrison as President of the United States. Mr. Birdsall was a mechanic of great energy, enterprise, and intelligence, and as a citizen, he was very popular and influential.

JAMES A. Dickson died in Boston on the 1st inst., after an illness of only four days, aged eighty years. In 1700 Mr Dickson was engaged by C. S. Powell to perform at the Haymarket theatre, which opened on the 26th of Boston was engaged as Saville, in the "Belle's Strategem." From that date till his retirement, Mr. Dickson was connected with the progress of the drama in Boston, and as acter and manager of the Boston theatre, his eareer was one of unparalleled success. His last appearance on the stage was on the 14th of May, 1821, for the benefit of his sister in law, Mrs. Snelling Powell, when he appeared as Sir Robert Bramble, in the "Poor Gentleman," and Will Steady, in "The Purse." Mr. Dickson had crossed the Atlantic ocean forty three times since he first came to this country, and he has on both sides of the Atlantic many warm personal friends.

THE OPERA AT NIELO'S.—In consequence of the illa-Signor Salvi, there was no performance on the last regular opera evening, (Friday,) and on Saturday the "Daughter of the Regiment" had to be substituted for the one announced, "La Favorita." The theatre was not so full as we expected, though the attendance was extremely fashionable. Madame Alboni appeared to be somewhat unusually cold in her performance, and did not enter into the impersonation of the Vivandiere with that humorous, rollicking spirit which she exhibited at vated her audience. Perhaps Madame recognized that she was appearing before a more artificial class of society, and altered her manner accordingly. Rovere acted Salpozio with his wonted vivacity and effectiveness. To-will show his taste in many ways. By a sensible man, we of course, mean a discriminating individual, who carries to knox beaver on his head. There is no disputing the fact—Knox hat is the superlative of beaverdom. There may be positives and comparatives, but take our word for it, the first shower will convert the positive into a negative, and the comparative into a cocked hat. "To be hatted" is a new verb, which must be conjugated at No. 128 Fulton street.

Creditable to the Age we Live in.-It is im-Creditable to the Age we Live in.—It is impossible for a gentleman to wear an unbecoming or an ill-shaped hat, if he wishes to appear comme il faut. His coat may be faultless in texture and make, his boots replendent with the beauty extracted from the purest "Day and Martin," his hands may be gloved by Stewart, or jowelled at Tenney's, and his linen of the purest and whitest description, the effect of all is sure to be destroyed by the selection of a poor hat. Remember this, and femember that the hats manufactured-by KNOX & JAMES, of the "Prescott Hat Store," are "creditable to the age we live in," and patronize them. Their establishment is on the corner of Broadway and Spring street.
